Unknown Faces Collection

by Catherine J. Martzloff

THE SERIES

Unknown Faces began as an intuitive exploration of the many roles women inhabit—as mothers, daughters, and sisters. Sifting through discarded fashion magazines, I cut imagery to build a visual framework, allowing the female figure to enter my work.

Over a year and a half, seven distinct figures emerged, each carrying her own atmosphere of color, pattern, memory, and place. Remaining faithful to this inspiration without knowing where it would lead, a series wove itself together naturally—turning imagined women into a portrait of an examined life.

THE ARTIST
catherine

Catherine is an East Coast oil painter drawn to the quiet beauty of everyday objects. Her still life paintings explore the interplay of color, pattern, and form within familiar arrangements. Working intuitively, she creates compositions that invite a slower look – moments of stillness shaped by perspective, presence, and the poetry of ordinary things.
